

Te Aroha Dramatic Society

NEWSLETTER Sept 2016

What a fantastic season we have just had with our latest production of "Run for your Wife". With Paul Fergusson's great direction the cast, including himself, played a charming characters which were so believable in a situation which was so very funny it had the audience rolling in the isles. If you saw it, I'm sure like me, you will never forget the sight of John Smith (aka Antony Jones) eating the newspaper !! If you didn't see it you missed an hilarious night out. Well done to all involved !!

PLAY READING: You are invited to a reading of a play which is a continuation of Run for your Wife 18 years later, and from what I have read so far will be hilarious! I have worked out that Tuesday 13 September at 7:00 pm is the best time. We need men and women as well as 2 younger people, a male and a female, between 14 and 18, if there are any interested young people out there. Reading plays like this gives a prospective director a chance to hear the play and get to grips with it, this is not an audition. Please feel free to come along and read.

After-school Drama Classes for Kids

Tadpoles classes in theatre, voice projection and stagecraft every Monday at 4pm Little Theatre, Te Aroha. The class is currently preparing to present The Grinch Who Stole Christmas in the Te Aroha Dramatic Society's end of year production in November. Those interested in being part of this venture should contact Ian Harrop 021 216044.
